A NEW APPROACH TO TEAM BUILDING

“Every member in a team is just as important as the leader”

If your staff are unlikely to relish being shipped off to the great outdoors to climb mountains, get cramp or be forced to bond with the man from accounts, then we can offer a different, but no less exciting workshop to rally your team together.

“A vocal group is a wonderful metaphor for a company”

Business Case

Is the experience of your employees that they feel stressed, undervalued and they are working individually?

Price Waterhouse Coopers Legal report that workplace stress is a very real occurrence in the modern workplace, with the incidence of stress-related claims having risen dramatically in the last ten years.

“Our team has designed a workshop that creates the workplace harmony you desire”

We will energise all team members, even those without youth and athleticism on their side. Singing as part of a group is about unity and blending, recognizing that each individual can make a difference. A team player will recognize that everyone working together achieves the greatest result.

“Turn a room full of strangers into a room full of team mates within hours”

Benefits

Our teambuilding sessions generate community and positive group dynamics. Participants will develop listening, problem solving, concentration and communication skills.

Our focus is to challenge each participant and reinforce personal responsibility through demonstrating every role, no matter how minor, contributes to the final outcome.

“We foster co-operation as opposed to competition by using something that everyone has - a voice”

Program

We will utilise all levels of abilities and encourage them to realise the difference they can make as an individual on the whole.

We provide exercises, which encourage a conversation between management and staff, from one department to another and to look at how we can be fully present as leaders.

Employees will be challenged to do something different, refreshing, rewarding and so energising! In a world of email there is still no substitute for communicating on a one-to-one basis, and song is such a fundamental and uplifting medium.

Who should attend?

Anyone and everyone - from those that are feeling undervalued, separate from the team and overworked to managers who believe the team could achieve greater cooperation and communication

Pricing is flexible and format is customized to suit your needs. Call us for further information.
